COLLEGE GUIDANCE

Finding the best college for a particular student and assuring appropriate financial aid is important to college guidance counselor Tony Carnahan H'10, but what is crucial is ensuring the student's ability to succeed no matter where he goes.

Tony has developed great relationships with admissions officers at many schools—relationships that give our students the same access as students at many other prestigious private schools. But he sees his job as not only introducing kids to schools but helping to insure their success. Sometimes that means helping a student apply to an Ivy League college, but it can also mean suggesting a student spend two years locally at a community college where he can continue to develop the skills and confidence necessary to success at a four year institution.

And he makes himself available to Gray Bees when they are ready to make the transition after two years. This approach makes our 95 percent college matriculation rate a more nuanced but meaningful statistic in which we can all take pride.

THE BENEDICT NEWS

Because of generous support from alumni, including some former Benedict News reporters, four members of The Benedict News staff attended the Newsroom by the Bay, a week-long workshop in online journalism at Stanford University in Palo Alto in June. Elliott McFarland, Josphanson Exume, Tyree Roulhac and Telmo DeMorais wrote stories, shot video and took photos for online newspapers they created during the workshop. Now back in the newsroom at Benedict's, the four are leading the staffs of the print and online Benedict News.

Opportunities to attend workshops and conventions where they can hone their skills and meet other student journalists are only possible with the help of donors who believe like we do that journalism education is also education in citizenship.

CREATIVE WRITING

Actively nurturing student talent, English Department Chairperson David Wolf, Ph.D has brought Benedict's writers into local and national prominence.

Four years ago he spearheaded the development of the Newark High School Writing Contest, now sponsored by the MFA Program in Creative Writing at Rutgers-Newark; since then numerous Benedict's students have taken top prizes. Additionally graduate students in the Rutgers-Newark MFA program help out in our own literary and creative writing workshops for Benedict's students.

Under David's guidance, the Kayrix, the school literary magazine, was again named a Gold Medalist by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. The National Council of Teachers of English has also awarded the Kayrix its highest designation.

He has developed a partnership with the Hudson Review, a journal of literature and the arts, that brings writers to Benedict's to read from their work and discuss their craft with students. Our own John Van Kirk '70 was the very first writer to speak at Benedict's through this program.
